

ANTHROPOLOGY

Project V

Project V is the Students' Union community volunteering scheme. Our aim is to offer University of Sussex students safe, supported and rewarding volunteering placements that benefit the local community.

Potential Projects for Anthropology Students:

Brighton Unemployed Centre Families Project

This project offers support for people who are unemployed, unwaged or low waged. The centre offers training opportunities, advice, and has a crèche and community café.

Brighton and Hove Neighbourhood Care Scheme

This project supports older people and people with physical / sensory disabilities who are at risk of social isolation. Volunteers are carefully matched with an older person living in the same community. This is a valuable opportunity for students to make a longer-term link with someone from an older generation and to share memories, talk about modern life etc.

Refugee and Asylum Seekers Project

RASP is a befriending project for young refugees and asylum seekers in Brighton and Hove. Part of Brighton and Hove Volunteers, this is a client and volunteer led project involving fortnightly drop-in sessions and monthly outings. The focus is to help young refugee and asylum seekers with integration and involvement in the local community with progression into voluntary placements.

(Please note that these are examples and we cannot guarantee that projects will be recruiting volunteers all year round but we have many more projects with a variety of client groups and communities across Brighton and Hove.)

Student Case Study: R.N volunteered with Refugee and Asylum Seeker Project

Why did you decide to volunteer? I did want to be a befriender for refugee and asylum seekers for a while before joining RASP but I had trouble finding the right organisation. Ever since getting to know people at school who had sought asylum in the UK, I have been passionate about refugee issues and about challenging the way immigration is dealt with by the government and the media. I wanted to take part in befriending in order to try and help make people's experience in the UK more welcoming- especially after becoming aware of the negative attitudes and misconceptions regarding immigration at my school and in wider society.

Tell us about your specific role: Working with young people new to life in the UK, supporting them in group activities during drop-in sessions and outings, helping build confidence, sharing language skills and generally just being a friendly face. I also co-ordinated and helped to deliver a series of computer classes for those looking to learn new skills.

What do you get out of your volunteering? I really enjoy just generally being a part of a friendly, fun group of young people- as well as being able to help out/offer specific support when needed. It's also been nice doing things centred around the Brighton community.

How does volunteering fit in with your student life? RASP is very flexible so if you're ever too busy with University work it's fine to miss a session or two. It's also quite fun and not really like work, so it's never felt like a job I have to fit in.

Why would you recommend volunteering to other students? Because it feels good to help people and because it's fun too and you always learn something.

Working with University Departments

We are keen to develop our links with university departments so that more of your students can benefit from volunteering and also to explore the possibility of developing mutually beneficial links between community projects and university departments.

a) Outreach Days: New for 2010-11, we have instigated 'Outreach Days', the purpose of these being to renew and develop relationships between community organisations, University departments and Project V. Each academic term we will keep 2 days free to visit community organisations and University departments, or for community organisations/ University departments to visit us. The dates of these Outreach Days are posted on our website (under Information for University Departments). Please e-mail Michaela at m.rossmann@sussex.ac.uk if you would like us to visit you, or wish to visit us.

b) Student Talks: We can provide short and informative talks for your students to advise them about the benefits that volunteering can bring. This includes dispelling some common myths that are held about volunteering and bringing into focus the need for work-relevant skills development.
